Office Overhead Expense Insurance

If your business is your family’s source of income, it makes good sense to ensure that your business can continue in the event of your Total Disability. Office Overhead Expense Insurance can help pay the bills for your sole practice, partnership, or professional corporation when an accident or illness leaves you temporarily disabled.

IN THE CASE OF TOTAL DISABILITY:

Reimbursement will be provided for incurred office expenses such as rent, salaries of your regular office staff (not including your salary or salaries paid to relatives or fellow Members), utilities, leased or rented equipment and other fixed expenses which are normal and customary in the operation of your office.

The maximum benefit payable will be your average monthly overhead expenses during the 6-month period immediately preceding disability. In the event of joint occupancy, partnership or shareholding in a professional corporation, only your share of the office overhead expenses will be used in determining the amount of benefit payable. If you die while in receipt of benefit payments, your estate or the professional corporation will receive an additional three months of benefit payments in a lump sum to help finalize the affairs of your office.

Choose from waiting periods of 7 days or 14 days, and from benefit periods of 6 months or 12 months. Maximum coverage is 35 units of $100 monthly benefit, or $3,500 a month.
Definitions Of Disability

TOTAL DISABILITY – You will be considered totally disabled if, due to sickness or injury, you are unable to perform the normal duties of your regular occupation and you are not employed in any other gainful occupation. After your waiting period plus the first 60 months of benefits, you must be unable to engage in any occupation for which you are reasonably suited by training, education or experience, and you must not be engaged in any type of gainful occupation.

PARTIAL DISABILITY – You will be considered partially disabled if, due to sickness or injury, you are unable to perform all of the normal duties of your regular occupation, but are able to perform some of those duties and are receiving Earned Income from this or any other gainful occupation (providing your Earned Income is reduced from its pre-disability level as a result of the disability).

Manulife Financial must receive satisfactory proof of your disability within 90 days from the date disability begins.
